World Almanac and Encyclopedia ,1902 Insurance, Biases, Discrimination and Fairness Arthur

Charpentier,2024-05-13 This book offers an introduction to the technical foundations of discrimination and equity issues in insurance models catering to undergraduates postgraduates and practitioners It is a self contained resource accessible to those with a basic understanding of probability and statistics Designed as both a reference guide and a means to develop fairer models the book acknowledges the complexity and ambiguity surrounding the question of discrimination in insurance In insurance proposing differentiated premiums that accurately reflect policyholders true risk termed actuarial fairness or legitimate discrimination is economically and ethically motivated. However, such segmentation can appear discriminatory from a legal perspective. By intertwining real life examples with academic models, the book incorporates diverse perspectives from philosophy, social sciences, economics, mathematics, and computer science. Although discrimination has long been a subject of inquiry in economics and philosophy, it has gained renewed prominence in the context of big data, with an abundance of proxy variables capturing sensitive attributes and artificial intelligence or specifically machine learning techniques which often involve less interpretable black box algorithms. The book distinguishes between models and data to enhance our comprehension of why a model may appear unfair. It reminds us that while a model may not be inherently good or bad, it is never neutral and often represents a formalization of a world seen through potentially biased data. Furthermore, the book equips actuaries with technical tools to quantify and mitigate potential discrimination, featuring dedicated chapters that delve into these methods.

The Encyclopedia Americana, 1927 The Encyclopedia Americana Frederick Converse Beach, Forrest Morgan, George Edwin Rines, E. T. Roe, Nathan Haskell Dole, Edward Thomas Roe, Thomas Campbell Copeland, 1903 Contingencies, 2005 Florence Nightingale David Amanda L. Golbeck, 2025-02-27

This book examines Florence Nightingale David's life, contributions, and relationships throughout her life, as well as her subsequent legacy. Florence Nightingale David (1909–1993) was the first woman professor in the world's first academic statistics department, served in various British ministries during the war from 1939–1945, and was one of the first women to chair a statistics department in a research university. In this biography, the life stories of David are used as a vehicle to explore a variety of questions surrounding culture and engagement in the statistical sciences. What does it take to succeed in an environment that is not inclusive of your demographic? How can stories be used to bring technical material to life for students and other learners? And how can a nontraditional leader succeed in challenging boundaries and moving an enterprise forward?
