Exchange Rates Megan J. Tauline, 2008 An exchange rate is the current market price for which one currency can be exchanged for another The spot exchange rate refers to the current exchange rate whereas the forward exchange rate refers to an exchange rate that is quoted and traded today but for delivery and payment on a specific future date Exchange rates vary because of changes in the relative demand for different countries goods and services and because national monetary and fiscal policies are inconsistent with each other Differences in tax rates and in interest rates cause capital flows which affect a country's balance of payments and consequently its exchange rate An overvalued exchange rate leads to a current account balance of payments deficit and bearish speculative capital movements an undervalued exchange rate creates a current account surplus and an influx of capital Volatile exchange rates and volatile interest rates coincide This book examines important issues in the field

Forecasting Financial Markets Christian Dunis, 1996-10-07 Today's financial markets are characterised by a large number of participants with different appetites for risk different time horizons different motivations and reactions to unexpected news The mathematical techniques and models used in the forecasting of financial markets have therefore grown ever more sophisticated as traders analysts and investors seek to gain an edge on their competitors Written by leading international researchers and practitioners this book focuses on three major themes of today's state of the art financial research modelling with high frequency data the information content of volatility markets and applications of neural networks and genetic algorithms to financial time series Forecasting Financial Markets includes empirical applications to present the very latest thinking on these complex techniques including High frequency exchange rates Intraday volatility Autocorrelation and variance ratio tests Conditional volatility GARCH processes Chaotic systems Nonlinearity Stochastic and EXPAR models Artificial neural networks Genetic algorithms international journal of forecasting, 2001 Bulletin Université catholique de Louvain (1835-1969).
