eSourcing Capability Model for Service Providers eSCM-SP Bill Hefley, Elaine B. Hyder, Keith Heston, Mark Paulk, 2015-01-01 The eSourcing Capability Model for Service Providers eSCM SP is the best practices model that supports sourcing organizations successfully manage and reduce their risks and improve their capabilities across the entire sourcing life cycle. It addresses the critical issues related to IT enabled sourcing eSourcing for both outsourced and in sourced shared services agreements. Each of the Model's 84 Practices is distributed along three easy to follow dimensions: Sourcing Life cycle, Capability Area, and Capability Level, and have been applied in IT BPO and KPO settings. The eSCM SP has been designed to complement existing quality models so that service providers can capitalize on their previous improvement efforts. ITIL V3 suggests that ITIL be supplemented with eSCM when service management is performed in the context of a sourcing arrangement. A series of documents comparing the eSCM SP with other models and standards has been developed. Developed by The IT Services Qualification Center ITSqc and endorsed by a number of organizations including IAOP International Association of Outsourcing Professionals, this title represents a major step forward for professionals looking to implement Best Practice within the Industry.

A Framework for Best Practices in the Sourcing Life-Cycle Bill Hefley, Ethel A. Loesche, Pawan Khera, Jane A.L Siegel, 2013 Organizations are increasingly delegating their information technology IT intensive business activities to external service providers to take advantage of the rapid evolution of the global telecommunications infrastructure. The business processes being outsourced range from routine and non critical tasks which are resource intensive and operational to strategic processes that directly impact revenues. Managing and meeting client expectations is a major challenge in sourcing of IT enabled services and examples of failure abound. The eSourcing Capability Model for Client Organizations eSCM CL is a best practices capability model with two purposes: 1 to give client organizations guidance that will help them improve their capability across the sourcing life cycle and 2 to provide client organizations with an objective means of evaluating their capability. The eSCM CL was developed by a consortium led by Carnegie Mellon University's Information Technology Services Qualification Center ITSqc. This work began in March 2003. Data collection activities have included an extensive review of the published literature, interviews with clients, service providers and advisors, and numerous workshops with global participation. This White Paper presents the architecture and rationale for the eSCM CL. This document provides valuable information about the eSCM CL, its implementation and methods to evaluate and certify client organizations.
