Cultivating Belief Sebastian Lecourt, 2018-04-05 This book explores how a group of Victorian liberal writers that included George Eliot Walter Pater and Matthew Arnold became attracted to new theories of religion as a function of race and ethnicity Since the early modern period British liberals had typically constructed religion as a zone of personal belief that defined modern individuality and interiority During the 1860s however Eliot Arnold and other literary liberals began to claim that religion could actually do the most for the modern self when it came as a kind of involuntary inheritance Stimulated by the emerging science of anthropology they imagined that religious experiences embedded in race or ethnicity could render the self heterogeneous while the individual who insisted upon selecting his or her own beliefs would become narrow and parochial By rethinking the grounds of religion this book argues these writers were ultimately trying to shift liberal individualism away from a classical Protestant liberalism that celebrated interiority and agency and toward one that valorized eclecticism and the capacity to keep multiple values in play More broadly their work offers us a new picture of secularization not as a process of religious decline but as the reinscription of religion as an ordinary feature of human life like art or politics or sex whose function could be debated

Selected Works of William Henry Davenport Adams William Henry Davenport Adams, 2020-09-28 The Princess Helena Koltzoff Massalsky better known by her pseudonym of Dora d'Istria came of the family of the Ghikas formerly princes of Wallachia and was born at Bucharest on the 22nd of January 1829 Through the care and conscientiousness of her instructor Mons Papadopoulos and her own remarkable capacity she acquired a very complete and comprehensive education When but eleven years old she composed a charming little story and before she had reached womanhood undertook a translation of the Iliad She showed no inclination for the frivolous amusements of a frivolous society Her view of life and its responsibilities was a serious one and she addressed all her energies to the work of self-improvement and self-culture She read and re-read the literary masterpieces of England France and Germany As a linguist she earned special distinction Her intellectual faculties says her master M Papadopoulos expanded with so much rapidity that the professors charged with her instruction could not keep any other pupil abreast of her in the same studies Not only did she make a wholly unexpected and unlooked-for progress but it became necessary for her teachers to employ with her a particular method her genius could not submit to the restraint of ordinary rules She was still in the springtime and flush of youth when she went on a tour to Germany and visited several German courts where she excited the same sentiments of admiration as in her own country it was impossible to see her without being attracted by so much intellect grace and amiability Travelling enlarged her horizon she was able to survey as from a watch-tower the course of great political events and she found herself mixing continually with the most celebrated savants and statesmen of the age Her friendly relations with persons of very diverse opinions while enabling her to compare and contrast a great variety of theories did but strengthen in her the idea and sentiment of liberty which can alone conduct society to its true aim Finally from the Italian revolution of 1848 which awoke her warmest sympathies she learned to understand the fatal consequences of despotic government as well as the inevitable mistakes of freedom when first unfettered and allowed to walk alone At the age of twenty she was married February 1849 and soon afterwards she set out for St Petersburg where she was recognised as the ornament of the higher society In the midst of her numerous engagements in the midst of the homage rendered to her wit and grace she found time to collect a mass of valuable notes on the condition and inner life of the great Russian Empire several provinces of which she knew from personal observation From St Petersburg to Moscow from Odessa to Revel her untiring activity carried her Most social questions are at work under an apparent calm and offer therefore subjects well worthy of careful study especially to so grave and clear an intellect as that of Princess Dora d Istria who possessed in the highest degree the faculty of steady meditation amidst the movement and the world stir that surrounded her The world charmed by her personal attractions had no suspicion of the restlessness and activity of her inquiring mind The gentlewoman in society baroness Beatrice Violet Greville,1892
