

How to Appeal a FEMA Decision

FEMA's first decision may not be the final decision. Survivors have the right to appeal any FEMA decision or award amount.

How do I appeal?

You can appeal any FEMA decision or award amount by sending documents that show you qualify and need more help, like estimates for repairs, receipts, bills, etc. Each decision letter you receive from FEMA explains the reason you are ineligible and the types of documents that may help you appeal FEMA's decision or award amount for that type of assistance.

Supporting documents may include:

- Receipts;
- Bills;
- Repair estimates;
- Property titles or deeds; or
- Any other information that may support the reasons for the appeal.

Do I have to send any other documents?

No. Documentation or estimates supporting your claim is all that is required to appeal a FEMA decision. You can also fill out the Appeal Request Form included with your FEMA decision letter. Appeals must be submitted within 60 days of the date on the FEMA decision letter.

What should I include on documents I send to FEMA?

All documents you send to FEMA as part of your appeal should include your:

- Full name;
- Current phone number and address;
- Disaster Number and FEMA Application Number written on all pages; and
- Address of the disaster-damaged home.
