and tomorrow Since the beginning of the 21st century the economic consequences of the debt crises of 2007 and 2008 of the Covid 19 pandemic and of Russia's war of aggression against Ukraine have continuously challenged the livelihood of many families in Europe and around the world Understanding economic crises from a historical perspective enables students to better respond to present and future experiences of such crises The mission of the Observatory on History Teaching in Europe OHTE is to provide a clear picture of the state of history teaching in its member states This is done through OHTE general reports on the state of history teaching in Europe and OHTE thematic reports which explore particular areas of interest and how they are treated in history lessons The second thematic report of the OHTE investigates the extent and the ways in which learners are being prepared to understand and cope with such crises through history education in the public schooling systems of OHTE's 17 member states It combines curriculum and textbook analysis with an explorative study of teachers' experiences and summarises its most significant conclusions into 10 key findings listed in the introductory chapter

(Re)Constructing Memory: Education, Identity, and Conflict Michelle J. Bellino, James H. Williams, 2017-02-08 How do schools protect young people and call on the youngest citizens to respond to violent conflict and division operating outside and sometimes within school walls What kinds of curricular representations of conflict contribute to the construction of national identity and what kinds of encounters challenge presumed boundaries between us and them Through contemporary and historical case studies drawn from Cambodia Egypt Northern Ireland Peru and Rwanda among others this collection explores how societies experiencing armed conflict and its aftermath imagine education as a space for forging collective identity peace and stability and national citizenship In some contexts the erasure of conflict and the homogenization of difference are central to shaping national identities and attitudes In other cases collective memory of conflict functions as a central organizing frame through which citizenship and national identity are re-constructed with embedded messages about who belongs and how social belonging is achieved The essays in this volume illuminate varied and complex interrelationships between education conflict and national identity while accounting for ways in which policymakers teachers youth and community members replicate resist and transform conflict through everyday interactions in educational spaces
