Inequality, Wealth, and Market Exchange in the Maya Lowlands Els Barnard, 2021 This volume examines the economic system of the Classic Maya Lowlands center of Uxul Campeche a secondary center under the political influence of Calakmul A household based approach is used to review the urban economic system in which these households played a central role Multiple lines of evidence are combined here using both quantitative and qualitative methods to study economic inequality settlement organization social integration power structures consumption production and exchange at the site The results suggest that the economy of Uxul was largely based on market exchange and although wealth inequality was high people along the socio economic spectrum had significant economic agency comparable quality of life and economic mobility was possible This study shows that the implementation of a multifaceted household based approach allows for a more complete understanding of the complex economy of an ancient urban center

Roman Frontier Studies 2009 Nick Hodgson, Paul T. Bidwell, Judith Schachtmann, 2017 Proceedings of the 21st International Congress of Roman Frontier Studies LIMES XXI hosted by Tyne Wear Archives Museums Newcastle upon Tyne UK in August 2009

Space-- Archaeology's Final Frontier? Roderick B. Salisbury, Dustin Keeler, 2007 This book discusses the cultural social and archaeological aspects of space and the impact of spatial concepts in practical archaeological case studies It summarizes recent developments and looks to the future exploring some of the cutting edge ideas in spatial method and theory The past decade has seen significant advances in the tools available for spatial analysis in archaeology and theory and method regarding the spatial character of archaeology must keep pace with these advances Geomorphological and geochemical techniques geographic information systems remotely sensed data virtual reality and electronic survey technology provide new opportunities but also require new ideas This book gives us insight into the ways that people have used space to subsist to recreate their culture in their homelands TM or in new areas or impose their culture on others Contributors address the way archaeological notions of space and deep time can add to society TM s understanding of landscape social relationships past environment and cultural heritage The contributions from Europe and North America demonstrate intercontinental connections and explore ways of using dynamic models of spatial patterning to assess human activity within natural and cultural landscapes      Computer Applications and Quantitative Methods in Archaeology 1991 Gary R. Lock,Jonathan Moffett,John Castleford,1992 The nineteenth consecutive conference CAA91 held at the University of Oxford 25 27th March 1991 More than thirty papers are presented here organised into four major groups databases GIS statistics images and graphics Contributors include Nick Ryan Michael Heyworth Neil Lang Steve Stead John Castleford Clive Ruggles Clive Orton and many others      Computer Applications and Quantitative Methods in Archaeology ,2000      Settlement Archaeology in a Fjordland Archipelago Quentin Mackie,2001 In this case study from Vancouver Island the p median model in a Location Allocation analysis is applied to a network formed by transportation linkages between 238 habitation zones It is shown that the more central places are also larger sites but this pattern only occurs at a spatial scale difficult to reconcile with deliberate optimising behaviour It is therefore concluded that this descriptive spatial geometry is irreconcilable with any plausible underlying generative social geometry based on either normative cultural rules or deliberate optimisation Recognition that the built environment is an interrupted process rather than a planned finished product allows one to avoid ascribing to the inhabitants a totalised decision set for site location and intensity of use based on the location allocation solution sets Instead it is argued that the observed spatial patterning is better seen as the signature of long term wide scale practical activity of individuals within a landscape of habit      The South African Archaeological Bulletin ,2007      Computer and Quantitative Methods in Archaeology ,1988
