

The Path to Enlightenment in Bhagavad-gita

✓ Exclusively available on IvyPanda

Bhagavad-gita is a significant sacred scripture in Hinduism that provides a detailed account of ethical, religious, and philosophical issues. In a more specific way, this scripture serves as a guide on the particularities of believing in Krishna as a path to conscious and enlightened life. This epic poem is written in the form of a dialogue with Krishna, who provides his instruction on how to live life according to the principles of Hinduism, which include practicing yoga, meditation, and engaging in virtuous living. Indeed, the achievement of enlightenment is considered an ultimate goal that establishes an opportunity of avoiding reincarnation or the continuous circle of death and rebirth. In this essay, the pieces of advice given by Krishna in Bhagavad-gita are explored and analyzed as per their complexity and attainability. It is claimed that despite the comprehensiveness and structural presentation of the requirements for achieving enlightenment, only the ones who abide by the strict rules might achieve enlightenment.

In the narrative of the epic poem, the guidance provided by Krishna unfolds some specific advice on how to achieve enlightenment. Indeed, the text holds that for an individual to become enlightened, one has to adhere to the different structurally divided methods of yoga. Overall, "Bhagavad-gita recognizes four yogas or methods of bhakti yoga (devotion), dhyāna yoga (meditation), jñāna yoga (transcendental knowledge), and karma yoga (virtuous acts)," which are the methods of enlightenment attainment, or God-realization (Rajandran 164). These methods are inherently connected with the Hindu differentiation between body, mind, and soul, which are separately trained through these yoga practices (Rajandran 163-164). The importance of practicing yoga as a path to enlightenment is repeatedly referred to in the text of the epic poem. Indeed, Krishna addressed his interlocutor by saying, "perform your duty equipoised, o Arjuna, abandoning all attachment to success or failure; such equanimity is called yoga" (Prabhubada 166). Thus, being emotionally balanced and unattached from the feelings and external factors allows an individual to engage in the practice of yoga. Thus, following these guidelines, one might eventually obtain true enlightenment.

The enlightenment is only available to the individuals who comply with the strict requirements and complete all of the steps necessary to achieve the enlightening goal.

EXCERPT The symbolic companionship of Arjuna and Krishna the human and the divine soul is expressed elsewhere in Indian thought in the heavenward journey of Indra and Kutsa seated in one chariot in the figure of the two birds upon one tree in the Upanishad in the twin figures of Nara and Narayana the seers who do tapasy together for the knowledge

But in all three it is the idea of the divine knowledge in which as the Gita says all action culminates that is in view here it is instead the action which leads to that knowledge and in which the divine Knower figures himself Arjuna and Krishna this human and this divine stand together not as seers in the peaceful hermitage of meditation but as fighter and holder of the reins in the clamorous field in the midst of the hurtling shafts in the chariot of battle The Teacher of the Gita is therefore not only the God in man who unveils himself in the word of knowledge but the God in man who moves our whole world of action by and for whom all our humanity exists and struggles and labours towards whom all human life travels and progresses He is the secret Master of works and sacrifice and the Friend of the human peoples      Essays on the Gita Aurobindo Ghose,1922
