Remaking Participation Jason Chilvers, Matthew Kearnes, 2015-11-02 Changing relations between science and democracy and controversies over issues such as climate change energy transitions genetically modified organisms and smart technologies have led to a rapid rise in new forms of public participation and citizen engagement While most existing approaches adopt fixed meanings of participation and are consumed by questions of method or critiquing the possible limits of democratic engagement this book offers new insights that rethink public engagements with science innovation and environmental issues as diverse emergent and in the making Bringing together leading scholars on science and democracy working between science and technology studies political theory geography sociology and anthropology the volume develops relational and co productionist approaches to studying and intervening in spaces of participation New empirical insights into the making construction circulation and effects of participation across cultures are illustrated through examples ranging from climate change and energy to nanotechnology and mundane technologies from institutionalised deliberative processes to citizen led innovation and activism and from the global north to global south This new way of seeing participation in science and democracy opens up alternative paths for reconfiguring and remaking participation in more experimental reflexive anticipatory and responsible ways This ground breaking book is essential reading for scholars and students of participation across the critical social sciences and beyond as well as those seeking to build more transformative participatory practices

Nanotechnology Iris Eisenberger, Angela Kallhoff, Claudia Schwarz-Plaschg, 2019-04-11 Over the last decades nanoscience and nanotechnology has been ascribed the potential to contribute beneficial applications in fields such as medicine cosmetics or environmental remediation At the same time it is still contested whether engineered nanomaterials might be not one sidedly good but may also entail negative side effects for human health and the environment To address this uncertainty academic and political initiatives have sought to establish norms and practices to assess and govern nanomaterials Rooted in different disciplines such as ethics ecology law social and political sciences the chapters in this edited volume explore the normative approaches societal practices and legal mechanisms which have emerged in the nano field over the last two decades The chapters also present a broad variety of evaluative approaches that may assist societal actors in their attempts to actively shape and contribute to the debate about nanomaterials

Environmental Participation Catharina Landström, 2019-12-13 This book introduces environmental participation as a distinct field comprising diverse practices It presents examples of public participation specifically in environmental science decision making and expertise The first chapter introduces the science studies perspective and the key concepts that underpin the argument for approaching such a range of practices as a coherent field The following three chapters explore a wide range of practical examples of how the public can participate in all three domains Drawing on her experience with a variety of transdisciplinary projects Landström discusses topics including the coproduction of knowledge about flooding community involvement with radioactive waste disposal and collaborative water quality modelling She then goes on to cover citizen science and social movement expertise as environmental participation practices The concluding chapter reflects on the challenges as well as future opportunities of environmental participation This book is aimed at readers from a variety of academic and non academic backgrounds and will be a great interest to social and natural scientists students and practitioners
