- Ecosystem: A community of living organisms interacting with their physical environment.

2. Describe the flow of energy in an ecosystem.

Energy flows from the sun to producers (autotrophs) through photosynthesis. It then moves to consumers (heterotrophs) through feeding. Energy is lost at each stage through respiration and other metabolic processes.

3. Explain the difference between a producer and a consumer.

Producers: Organisms that can synthesize their own food from inorganic substances using light energy (photosynthesis) or chemical energy (chemosynthesis).

Consumers: Organisms that cannot synthesize their own food and must obtain energy by consuming other organisms.

4. Draw a diagram of an energy pyramid showing the flow of energy from producers to primary, secondary, and tertiary consumers.

Section 2: Communities and Population Growth

- Community: A group of interacting populations of different species in a common location.
- Biome: A large-scale community of plants and animals that occupies a major part of the land or water surface of the Earth.
- Ecosystem: A community of living organisms interacting with their physical environment.

2. Describe the factors that limit population growth.

Population growth is limited by both biotic and abiotic factors. Biotic factors include competition for resources, predation, and disease. Abiotic factors include temperature, water availability, and space.

3. Explain the difference between a population and a community.

Population: A group of individuals of the same species living in the same area.

Community: A group of interacting populations of different species in a common location.

4. Draw a diagram of a community showing the interactions between different species.
