Students with Both Gifts and Learning Disabilities Tina A. Newman, Robert J. Sternberg, 2012-12-06 We were motivated to edit this book when we began to hear stories of exceptional students who were struggling with reading writing or math but who could solve seemingly any problem with computers or build the most intricate structures with Legos or could draw beautiful pictures or could tell the most creative stories but ended up in tears when asked to write it out How is it possible to have so much talent in some areas and yet to appear to have a disability in another What resources are available for these students How can we ensure that these students abilities are nurtured and developed Our goal in this book is to provide ideas and possibly even tentative answers for educators and to stimulate more questions to be answered by researchers We have ourselves been addressing related questions for some time Our group at the PACE Center at Yale has explored the development of abilities competencies and expertise that allow people to be successful in life Through this work we have collaborated with school districts and other educators and researchers across the country to expand the notion of what is traditionally thought of as intelligence We use the concept of successful intelligence to allow for the possibility that the skills traditionally taught in school are not the only ones and often not even the most important ones that allow people to be successful in the world

Barriers to Inclusion Justin J. W. Powell, 2015-12-03 Barriers to Inclusion offers a comparative and historical account of the rise of special education over the twentieth century in the United States and Germany This institutional analysis demonstrates how categorical boundaries professional groups social movements and education and social policies shaped the schooling of children and youth with disabilities It traces the evolution of special education classification explores growing special education organizations and examines students learning opportunities and educational attainments Highlighting cross national differences over time the author also investigates demographic and geographic variability within the federal democracies especially in segregation and inclusion rates of disabled and disadvantaged children Germany's elaborate system of segregated special school types contrasts with diverse American special education classrooms mainly within regular schools Joining historical case studies with empirical indicators this book reveals persistent barriers to school integration as well as factors that facilitate inclusive education reform in both societies

Disability and Society Renu Addlakha, 2009 In the 1980s disabled scholars in the West began to develop a radical critique of biomedical conceptions of disability that focused exclusively on the individual body and its limitations They also exposed the failure of the social sciences to critically address what this medical understanding of disability meant and what it excluded from consideration Out of their work emerged what is generally called the social model of disability Over the past twenty years this perspective has generated a substantial literature much of it making use of the methods of qualitative social research Narratives and life histories produced by disabled people themselves have a central place in the Disability Studies literature This work has major implications for professionals in the rehabilitation field for the social sciences and the ultimate goal for the full integration of disabled people into society However almost all of it focuses on the traditions practices and dilemmas of northern countries In India in Thailand and in most of Asia the field of disability continues to be dominated by the biomedical model Thus disability is understood as an incurable chronic illness and increasingly an object for medical diagnosis and investigation Despite many positive developments little convergence between disability politics and practice on the one hand and sociology and anthropology on the other has taken place Surveying the international literature on disability and rehabilitation it becomes apparent that many studies carried out in Asian countries are designed to measure the extent of unmet need or the impact of services or attitudes to disabled people Virtually no studies make use of the innovative usually qualitative and often holistic approaches developed in Western countries over the past twenty years This book introduces readers in Asian countries to the recent disability literature of the West The editors hope that it will inspire new thinking among social scientist rehabilitation professionals and organizations of disabled people themselves that could further the empowerment of people with disabilities
