Handbook Of Disaster Risk Reduction & Management: Climate

Change And Natural Disasters Christian N Madu,2017-07-25 Climate change is increasingly of great concern to the world community The earth has witnessed the buildup of greenhouse gases GHG in the atmosphere changes in biodiversity and more occurrences of natural disasters Recently scientists have begun to shift their emphasis away from curbing carbon dioxide emission to adapting to carbon dioxide emission The increase in natural disasters around the world is unprecedented in earth s history and these disasters are often associated to climate changes Many nations along the coastal lines are threatened by massive floods and tsunamis Earthquakes are increasing in intensity and erosion and droughts are problems in many parts of the developing countries This book is therefore to investigate ways to prepare and effectively manage these disasters and possibly reduce their impacts. The focus is on mitigation strategies and policies that will help to reduce the impacts of natural disasters. The book takes an in-depth look at climate change and its association to socio-economic development and cultures especially in vulnerable communities and investigates how communities can develop resilience to disasters. A balanced and a multiple perspective approach to manage the risks associated with natural disasters is offered by engaging authors from the entire globe to proffer solutions.

Disaster Risk Reduction Approaches in Bangladesh Rajib Shaw, Fuad Mallick, Aminul Islam, 2013-05-31. This book outlines disaster risk reduction (DRR) approaches in Bangladesh drawing examples and lessons from the national and community level programs, projects and relevant experiences of the country. The content is based on a selection of available documents, a consultative workshop with academicians from different universities undertaking DRR higher education programs and the editors' own knowledge and experience in the field. Special emphasis is given to analyzing field experiences from academic perspectives and to highlighting key issues and the policy relevance of disaster risk reduction. The book has three parts. Part I provides the outline and basics of DRR with examples from a global review and from national policies and priorities. Part II covers seven different hazards in Bangladesh focusing on both shocks and stresses. Part III provides examples of approaches and issues of DRR practices. The primary target groups for this book are students and researchers in the fields of environment, disaster risk reduction and climate change studies. The book will provide them with a good idea of the current trend of research in the field and will furnish basic knowledge on this important topic in Bangladesh. Another target group comprises practitioners and policy makers who will be able to apply collective knowledge to policy and decision making.

Sustainable Development and Disaster Risk Reduction Juha I. Uitto, Rajib Shaw, 2015-11-05. This book focuses on exploring the linkages between natural disasters and sustainable development at the global, regional and national levels. Disasters and development are closely related yet the disciplinary silos prevail and there is little communication and cooperation between the disaster management environment and development communities. One catastrophic event such as an earthquake, tsunami or cyclone can destroy infrastructure, people's lives and livelihoods and set back development. Similarly, slow-onset disasters often associated with global climate change pose threats to development, livelihoods, food security and long-term sustainable development. This book is uniquely aimed at bridging the gaps between the environmental development and disaster management communities. It traces the evolution of concepts and practice and highlights the linkages between natural disasters and sustainable development in key sectors including food security, health and water. The book includes case studies from the field highlighting the complex issues that challenge sustainable development and disaster risk management in practice. It draws policy conclusions for the global community based on state-of-the-art knowledge from research and practice. The primary target groups for the book are researchers including graduate students in the fields of environment and sustainable development, geography, disaster risk reduction and climate change studies. The second target group comprises practitioners and policymakers working in national and international organizations the private sector and civil society
