Disciplinary Discourses Ken Hyland, 2000 Applied Linguistics and Language Study General Editor Christopher N Candlin Chair Professor of Applied Linguistics Centre for English Language Education Communication Research Department of English City University of Hong Kong Hong Kong Since it was first established in the 1970s the Applied Linguistics and Language Study series has become a major force in the study of practical problems in human communication and language education Drawing extensively on empirical research and theoretical work in linguistics sociology psychology and education the series explores key issues in language acquisition and language use Disciplinary Discourses Social Interactions in Academic Writing presents a series of innovative studies focusing on eight disciplines and a variety of key genres to examine the relationships between the cultures of academic communities and their discursual practices It proposes a framework to account for the interactions between writers and their readers in published academic writing draws clear teaching suggestions and offers detailed methodological principles and suggestions to support further research Drawing on discourse analysis corpus linguistics and the voices of professional insiders Ken Hyland explores how academics use language to organise their professional lives carry out intellectual tasks and reach agreement on what will count as knowledge Through its focus on the features of key genres this book shows what close textual analyses can reveal about the social practices and institutional ideologies of different academic communities and at the same time provides a clear basis for further research The theoretical and descriptive accounts have strong practical implications for the understanding of academic writing and disciplinary communities It will therefore be of great interest to teachers and students of academic writing English for Specific Purposes and discourse analysis more generally Ken Hyland is an Associate Professor in the Department of English City University of Hong Kong Demystifying Academic Writing in Higher Education: A Process View on Academic Textual Production Xinghua Liu, Rui Alexandre Alves, Angélique Aitken, Josef Schmied, 2025-10-30 Academic writing in this Research Topic refers to the type of writing demonstrating students disciplinary knowledge of and proficiency in synthesizing analyzing and responding critically to new information Hyland 2004 Swales 1990 which may include those genres like course essays project reports research proposals lab notes journal articles conference paper theses and dissertations As the current workplaces have become increasingly specialized higher education worldwide has been increasingly charged with the task of developing students academic writing and correspondingly on students parts learning through writing has been necessary for them to succeed in higher education To prepare university students for writing challenges during the past decades numerous studies have been devoted to the study of linguistic and rhetorical resources in students academic writing under such umbrella terms like style reader awareness authorial voice writers identity stance evaluation textual structures steps and moves Charles Hunston Hinkel 2002 However previous research on academic writing has been predominantly focused on the linguistic and rhetorical aspects namely the final product of students writing while the nature and processes of composition

students engagement and individual differences and the influence of contextual factors like emerging technology have been under explored Thus the goal of this Research Topic is to bring a process oriented and dynamic perspective to the study of textual production in academic contexts by both encouraging an expanded view of existing research paradigms and also welcoming novel approaches Data can be collected by using corpus building interviews and questionnaires but we would also welcome the use of experimental methods and a mixed method approach for data collection Meanwhile previous research mainly studied university students who were learning English as a second or foreign language hence we also welcome research examining first language writers and students who are learning a second or foreign language other than English We believe for the study of the complex phenomenon like academic writing no single method or tool can suffice Therefore we strongly recommend a more creative perspective in data collection and analyzing and interpreting academic writing Papers can present quantitative data analyses based on experimental design or qualitative data analyses stemmed from more ethnographic oriented research Systematic review studies are also welcome We encourage contributions related but not restricted to the following topics 1 Cognitive processes in academic texts planning composing and revisions and student writers individual differences 2 Metacognition and self regulation in academic texts planning composing and revisions and student writers individual differences 3 Motivation and self efficacy in academic texts planning composing and revisions and student writers individual differences 4 Linguistic and rhetorical choices identity construction and disciplinary knowledge construction 5 Student writers textual production peer feedback and interactions with discourse communities 6 Affordances and challenges of artificial intelligence AI in the process of academic textual production in higher education

Confrontation in Academic Communication Irena Vassileva, 2023-08-21 This book examines the argumentation strategies employed by linguists in voicing criticism looks for explanations for confrontation in academic discourse and evaluates the positive and or negative effects it has on international academic communication Issues such as the role of intertextuality cross cultural variations and the notion of academic discourse community are also touched upon Special attention is paid to the modern developments in contrastive rhetoric studies as well as to the controversial issue of the use of context based versus corpus based methods The corpus under investigation consists of academic book reviews in English and German with a clearly stated negative character as well as a series of publications in English interrelated by the fact that they discuss a common group of problems but from two fully confrontative points of view They illustrate what has been called an academic war Some related theoretical issues are also discussed including the role of evaluation in academic communication the relationship between criticism critique negative evaluation and confrontation in academic communication as well as the importance of culture discipline culture and communities of practice The contrastive discourse analysis demonstrates differences between English and German in terms of the rhetorical strategies employed by review writers to express criticism The book will be of interest to researchers in the fields of academic communication and rhetorics as well as teachers in

American Book Publishing Record ,2003 The British National Bibliography Arthur James Wells,2006

Со̀тсиологическii žhurnal ,2004 Academic Discourse Across Disciplines Ken Hyland,Marina Bondi,2006 This volume reflects the emerging interest in cross disciplinary variation in both spoken and written academic English exploring the conventions and modes of persuasion characteristic of different disciplines and which help define academic inquiry This collection brings together chapters by applied linguists and EAP practitioners from seven different countries The authors draw on various specialised spoken and written corpora to illustrate the notion of variation and to explore the concept of discipline and the different methodologies they use to investigate these corpora The book also seeks to make explicit the valuable links that can be made between research into academic speech and writing as text as process and as social practice

Disciplinary Identities Ken Hyland, 2012-03-22 An engaging advanced level introduction to the emerging field of discourse studies of identity with particular reference to academic contexts Disciplinary Identities uses findings from corpus research to present fascinating insights into the relationship between author identity and disciplinarity in academic writing Ken Hyland draws on a number of sources to explore how authors convey aspects of their identities within the constraints placed upon them by their disciplines rhetorical conventions He promotes corpus methods as important tools in identity research demonstrating the effectiveness of keyword and collocation analysis in highlighting both the norms of a particular genre and an author's idiosyncratic choices Also available separately as a paperback

Commonality and Individuality in Academic Discourse Maurizio Gotti, 2009 This volume explores the relationship between shared disciplinary norms and individual traits in academic speech and writing Despite the standardising pressure of cultural and language related factors academic communication remains in many ways a highly personal affair with active participation in a disciplinary community requiring a multidimensional discourse that combines the professional institutional social and individual identities of its members The first section of the volume deals with tensions involving individual collective values and the analysis of collective vs individual discursual features in academic discourse The second section comprises longitudinal investigations of the academic output of single scholars so as to highlight the individuality in their choices and the reasons for not conforming with the commonality of conventions shared by their professional community The third part deals with genres that are meant to impose commonality on the members of an academic community not only in the drafting of specialized texts but also when these are reviewed or evaluated for possible publication

Language and Discipline Perspectives on Academic Discourse Kjersti Fløttum, 2009-05-05 This book represents the physical outcome of the symposium Academic Voices in Contrast organised at the University of Bergen Norway in May 2006 The symposium focusing on recent research within the field of academic discourse was initiated and organised by the KIAP project Cultural Identity in Academic Prose see www.uib.no/kiap In this project a special focus has been put on the study of the voice(s) of the academic author in the doubly contrastive perspective of language and discipline A narrow selection of distinguished scholars were invited to participate at the symposium They were asked to address issues related to traditional linguistic versus contextual approaches or to interlingual and interdisciplinary similarities and differences in academic discourse By the papers of the following the symposium and the present book constitute a clear advancement of the research on academic discourse M A A Ariza L Berge M Bondi S V Bonn S Carter Thomas T Dahl K Fløttum A M Gjesdal F Grossmann K Hyland T Kinn L Lundquist A Mauranen M Pab n E Rowley Jolivet F Salager Meyer P Shaw J M Swales J L T nnesson E T Vold F Wirth
