Disasters and the Networked Economy J.M. Albala-Bertrand, 2013-05-02 Mainstream quantitative analysis and simulations are fraught with difficulties and are intrinsically unable to deal appropriately with long term macroeconomic effects of disasters In this new book J M Albala Bertrand develops the themes introduced in his past book The Political Economy of Large Natural Disasters Clarendon Press 1993 to show that societal networking and disaster localization constitute part of an essential framework to understand disaster effects and responses The author s last book argued that disasters were a problem of development rather than a problem for development This volume takes the argument forward both in terms of the macroeconomic effects of disaster and development policy arguing that economy and society are not inert objects but living organisms Using a framework based on societal networking and the economic localization of disasters the author shows that societal functionality defined as the capacity of a system to survive reproduce and develop is unlikely to be impaired by natural disasters This book will be of interest to scholars and practitioners involved in disaster analysis and response policy and will also be relevant to students of development economics

Theory of Global Capitalism William I. Robinson, 2004-03-12 In this book sociologist William Robinson offers a theory of globalization that follows the rise of a new capitalist class and a new type of state formation He explains how global capital mobility has allowed capital to reorganize production worldwide in accordance with a whole range of considerations that allow for maximizing profit making opportunities This worldwide decentralization and fragmentation of the production process has taken place alongside the centralization of command and control of the global economy in transnational capital In turn this economic reorganization finds a political counterpart in the rise of the transnational state In the future Robinson argues hegemony will be exercised not by a particular nation state but by the new global ruling class who regardless of their nationality tend to share similar lifestyles and interact through expanding networks of this transnational state In this way the process of globalization is unifying the world into a single mode of production that is increasingly integrating different countries and regions into a new global economy and society Robinson concludes that because the new global capitalism is rife with
