demonstrate their techniques and motivations while the responses of contemporary readers are traced through the pencil marginalia they left behind in dozens of original copies In spite of their typically limited knowledge of source languages Asian Classics argues that popularizers produced versions more respectful of the complexity cultural difference and fundamental untranslatability of Asian texts than the professional orientalists whose work they were often adapting The responses of their readers likewise frequently deviated from interpretive norms and it is proposed that this combination of eccentric translators and unorthodox readers triggered flights of translation whereby historical individuals can be seen to escape the hegemony of orientalist forms of knowledge
